NEWS FROM THE COUNTRY

GOSPORT.

The two day's meeting held in the Methodist church last Thursday and Friday by the Rev. H. I. Allen were a grand success as well the Quarterly meeting service on Sabbath. Large congregations and most excellent services. The choir made up from the congregation discoursed splendid music. Mrs. Soby and Mrs. Rev. H. I. Allen presided at the organ alternately. There were many here from all parts of the circuit and expressed themselves profited with the services.

Rev. Mr. Allen announced an excursion for the 15th inst., but we are very sorry to hear that he could not complete the arrangements hence he says it will have to be postponed.

Mr. James McMerrin sold a two-year-old heifer to a Napawee butcher it being too fat to drive so it was slaughtered here. It was pronounced the fattest grass fed animal he ever dressed. There are more fine cattle this way.

GULL CREEK.

The writer is in the minor key* so you may know that he is not in a lively mood for writing much.

The last week or two has been a lively time in this locality, by those who come from various places seeking huckleberries, but we were sorry to see many of them much disappointed. The huckleberry crop this year around these parts is comparatively a failure. The rush is now extended north of us back of Cross Lake. Many vehicles are going and returning along this road by this place night and day. It would be well if we could say except Sunday, alas, we cannot. It grieves us very much to see and meet on the Sabbath day vehicles loaded with empty boxes on their way back for to be ready for the rush on Monday morning. Is this not a desecration of the Lord's Day? Is it not a demoralizing effect upon the character of those who manifest such irreverence to the Lord's holy day? I think that those who have the power to check such a disgraceful habit, should use it in honor to Him, who ordained the Sabbath day, and called it His own day. God will honor those who honor Him.

We were glad recently to meet old friends and neighbors and to form the acquaintance of those that we never had the pleasure of associating with. The Wagar Bros. and others near Mud Lake were among the many that were here lately. Lively fellows that will keep the fire of life a blaze. Also among the number were Mr. and Mrs. James Shannon, Enterprise; Messrs. Keech and Vanest, Tamworth; Mrs. Garrison, Varty Lake; Mr. and Mrs. Storms, Moscow, etc. This gentleman amused us much by describing the sceneries of the World's Fair. We were sorry that busy times did not permit us to accept his friendly invitation to join the company at a generous repast prepared by the ladies at the camp. Those who were there highly praise the viands and the social. We were also very sorry to hear of Mr. Storm's accident at Gull Creek bridge by the attempt to cross the creek the team sank into the mire. This might have proved disastrous for both him and the team, but fortunately the team was got out safe, and a very trifling damage done. He is not the first to be insured here.

*Physical weakness.

A Prompt Cure.

member of this year's camp except those who remained for a few days only, gained from four to eight pounds in weight. This too after a bath.

About ten days ago the camp fishermen set a night line near the camp upon which there were about thirty hooks loaded with tempting bait. Upon examination in the morning the line was gone. Some fisherman near by told us that it had been carried away by a sturgeon or maskinonge. We, however, paid no attention to the matter and gave our line up for lost and resolved to waste no more time or lines in that manner. Last Sunday afternoon, while Mr. Snelgrove was rowing across to the island he noticed a stick in the water with a white cotton rope tied to it and upon arriving at camp enquired the meaning of it. No one could furnish him with any information, so Mr. Fair rowed out with him to examine it. The stick proved to be the buoy of our night line and upon attempting to pull it in they met with so much resistance that they concluded the safer course would be to tow it ashore, which they did with great difficulty. Then the tug-of-war began. The boys would have believed it if they had been told that they had a whale on the other end of the line. The line was soon landed and things were pretty lively about Le Nid for a few minutes for the catch proved to be a writhing mass which could have been very easily mistaken for black snakes. They, however, were eels. There were nine of them and they were contending one with the other as to which could squirm the most, and no member of camp was particularly anxious to remove them from the line. The editor, who regarded it as his catch, finally mustered courage and tackled the job. It was then the real fun began. No one can appreciate the scene who has not tried to take an eel off a line or witnessed some one doing it. Every one knew how to do it better than the editor so he asked the others to try one if they thought they could improve upon his method. Soon four or five were wrestling each with his own eel, and if an instantaneous photograph could have been taken at the time, an Indian war dance would not have compared with the picture. The mystery still remains unsolved, how did the line get where it was found, fully half a mile from where we set it. Four or five of the hooks were gone and the explanation offered by a local fisherman is that a maskinonge or sturgeon had been on one or more of these hooks and had dragged the line about for some time and finally extricated himself where the line was found by Mr. Snelgrove.

SEWAGE IRRIGATION.

A Typical Drainage Plant Recently Completed in India.

Some interesting particulars are given by "London Engineering" with regard to the progress of the drainage works at sewage farms, in Ahmedabad, India. It is officially reported that up to the present time 966 house connections have been completed, the sewage water of which is being daily carried by drain to the pumping station, whence it is pumped to the sewage farm, situated at a distance of more than two miles. The streets which have been drained are said to be greatly improved from a sanitary point of view, and there are no complaints from householders whose houses have been connect with the sewers.

HOW ANIMALS COUNT.
Some Curious Experiments by Cleveland Moffett.
A Russian physician has been making some curious experiments to find out how far animals can count.
He declares the crow can count up to 19 and is thereby superior in arithmetic to certain Polynesian tribes of men who cannot get beyond five or six.
The doctor had a dog, which was accustomed to bury the bones it found, each one in a separate place in the garden. One day, wishing to test the animal's power of counting, the master gave it less than 26 bones, which were all buried one after another in special hiding-places. The next day the dog was given no more bones and so was forced to dig up the old ones. When it came to a stop.
After whining and running about as in a state of great perplexity a new idea seemed to enter the canine brain and again the dog began to dig up the hidden bones and this time he added nine to the total before his memory again failed him.
There was a second period of whining and perplexity, after which the seven remaining bones were found with some

A Castle in the Air

According to accounts from Belgium, a great exhibition of novel character is shortly to be given in Antwerp. The expression, "A castle in the air," has hitherto borne only a figurative meaning, but an ingenious engineer named Tobianski proposes to make it more than a mere figure of speech. He has formed a company for the purpose of building a literal castle in the air. He has designed a sort of raft, having an area of about 180 square feet and made of bamboo canes and steel and aluminium piping. Upon this is built a most luxuriously fitted restaurant. The raft is held, floating in the air, 500 feet above the ground, by a number of balloons, and an arrangement of anchoring by means of cables will, according to M. Tobianski, prevent the restaurant from rocking, even in the roughest wind. Two small captive balloons, each holding from eight to ten persons, are to serve as elevators between the aerial restaurant and the earth. There is a regular system for supplying gas to the balloons, and at night the exhibition will be illuminated by an immense electric light projected from the raft. The whole thing can be lowered to the ground within ten minutes by steam windlasses specially constructed.

Indestructible Paint.

A German chemist has invented and perfected a process which, it is claimed, will revolutionize the method of decorating buildings as at present followed. The most important feature of the process is that it is applied in as simple a form, and at as inexpensive cost, as common house paint, and is as readily applicable to inside walls and ceilings. From a sanitary point of view the new medium forms one of the most important advances of the times. Once applied, the fresco coating is said to be absolutely indestructible, being unaffected by temperature or chemicals. It is impervious to damp, and will admit of an indefinite amount of scrubbing and cleaning. Walls and ceilings thus treated can be rendered free from disease germs by washing with acids.

Electric Steamships.

It is generally thought that the possibilities of steam in the propulsion of ocean steamers are pretty well exhausted, and there is much talk of electricity as the coming motive power for that purpose. A significant proof of this is afforded in the report, which is said to be well authenticated, that Harland & Wolff, who are known the world over as the builders of some of the finest ocean ships that cross the Atlantic, do not look for much more progress with steam power, but regard electricity as likely to achieve great things in the direction of increasing the speed of ocean steamers, and that, too, before many years have passed.

Railway Safety Clock.

Peter Long, of Greensburg, Pa., is the patentee of one of the most useful railway appliances of the age—a railway signal time clock which accurately indicates the times intervening between the passage of trains. It is mounted similarly to a danger signal, and the engineer can readily tell, by simply glancing at the dials, the length of time which has elapsed since the preceding train passed that point. The clock runs regularly and indicates the hours and minutes just as an ordinary timepiece does, but an ingenious device and the time-marking apparatus throw the minute hand back to 12 at the time of the passing of each train. Then the hand moves forward in the regular way until the next train thunders past, when it is again thrown back to 12, where it will re-begin its 54-minute journey. The purpose of having the hand stop at 55 minutes is to show that at least that time has elapsed since a train has passed that way which is amply sufficient to indicate "clear

There was a second period of whining and perplexity, after which the seven remaining bones were found with some difficulty.

The doctor concluded from this that 26 was too large a number for the dog to take in all at once and that he had been obliged to remember the bones as it were in three shorter series.

The cat, it would seem, is even less of an arithmetician than the dog, not being able to count as far as 10.

Before giving his cat its regular piece of meat the doctor would put it under the animal's nose and then withdrew it five times in succession and it was only the sixth time that he would give the cat the morsel. This number was repeated every day until the cat grew perfectly accustomed to waiting five times, but would spring forward of its own accord at the sixth presentation.

Having thus demonstrated that pussy was able to remember up to six the doctor tried to put seven without success. As soon as he attempted to perform the experiment with higher numbers the cat became confused and would jump forward for the meat at the wrong time. The number six would therefore seem to be the limit of the cat's power of counting.

Not less interesting were similar experiments with horses. In the village of Pekoe, the doctor found a peasant's horse which was used for plowing, and which had acquired the habit of counting the furrows and stopping for a rest regularly at the twentieth. So confident was the plowman of the accuracy of his horse's calculations that the end of the day he used to estimate the amount of work done, not by counting the furrows himself, but by simply remembering the number of times his horse had stopped to rest.

In another village the doctor found a horse which was able to count the mile-posts along the way, and which had been trained by its master to stop for feed whenever they had covered 25 versts. One day they tried the horse over a road where three false mile-posts had been put up in between the real ones, and sure enough the horse deceived by this trick, stopped for his oats at the end of 23 versts instead of going the usual 25.

The same horse was accustomed to being fed every day at the stroke of noon. The doctor observed that whenever the clock struck any hour the horse would stop and prick up his ears as if counting. If he heard 12 he would trot off contentedly to be fed, but if there were fewer strokes than 12 he would go on working resignedly.

The experiment was made of striking 12 strokes at the wrong time, whereupon the horse started for his oats in spite of the fact that he had been fed only an hour before. This shows that little knowledge may be a bad thing for horses as well as men.

A Dog Story.

If all the stories that are told about dogs are true, there is very little ground for believing that the canine race is unprovided with brains. Certainly one dog known to history must have had brains, and that dog is the one of whom a correspondent of an English country paper once wrote:

"I had a dog, sir, that I think beat all the dogs I ever heard of. I trained that dog to sit up at meals, use a knife and fork, and tell the hour by the clock. Among other things, I taught him to go to the postoffice, three miles off, and bring my paper and the letters of myself and guests every morning. He would bring them regularly, and leave the letters at the room doors of their various owners, and I never knew him to make a mistake in the directions, not even when we had visitors at the house, whose names he never could have seen before. One day, however, he brought the letters, but no newspaper; I sent him back, but he returned again without the paper. After breakfast I rode over to the postoffice myself and asked the postmaster why the paper had not been given to the dog.

"Why, sir," the postmaster replied, "they didn't send The Times to-day, and I offered the dog The Daily News and The Standard instead, but he wouldn't take either of them."—Harpers' Young People.

TAMWORTH.

Messrs. Douglas and Doughty with their company gave a very nice picnic in which boating and fishing gave excellent sport for the day recently, as did Messrs. Sherman and O'Brien and daughters with friends from a distance.

The last and largest picnic given by the people of Tamworth, took us by surprise, as the number was larger than on former occasions. All kinds of sport was put in action, such as rowing and boating and gathering water lilies, also games were introduced for those who prefer them to boating or sailing. Tables were set, to which over 80 took tea. Everybody being delighted with the day's sport.

The Lime Kiln Club just returned to their native town after spending two weeks camping near the placid waters of Beaver Lake. The club is in good standing. The following officers being elected for the season:—Captain, John O'Brien, the noted high chief in the catching of mudcats and trolling for bass. E. A. Vandewater, overseer of the peanut stand. J. A. Floyd, manager of the cooking department, and noted for his excellent taste in preparing some very fine dishes of baked beans and pastery. D. B. Floyd captain of the sail boat Alpha, on which he made some very fine trips. Prof. Vandewater, leader of the music in the pavillion, also captain of the peanut stand, gave some very fine selections of music. Mr. Allen playing the accompaniment on the mouth organ, which enlivened our visitors from Tamworth to the number of ten, which were Messrs. Fuller, Rose, Chant, Allen and others. Stewart Lockridge care taker of the bed department, also manager of Addison's steam yacht "Teasel Water."

Several large fish were caught during our stay, a large pike weighing 44 lbs. when dressed.

Captain says he will not hold the tent up with a broom again, so that the water will not come through.

Our orator thinks it would be advisable to import an Athenian jury to fine the owner of the yacht, guilty of eating pickles and sentence him, viz: that he be compelled to drink the juice of huckleberry and let his feathers grow.

Stanley says that the boys said he was in it, but no, he had only a bird's eye view of the rail fence, but would have come in if he had had an introduction to the bull-dog.

As business in connection with the peanut stand has been brisk of late, Vandy will make a much larger importation of Jew's-harp than he expected for next season.

CAMP LIFE.

Mr. Merritt of the Merchant's Bank spent two days at our camp last week. Mr. H. J. Snelgrove, editor of the Cobourg World spent Sunday in camp renewing old acquaintances.

The boys made several good hauls of bull frogs out of Lake on the Mountain.

A steam yacht has been added to the attractions at the Island.

Messrs. Fair and Snelgrove returned to their respective homes by the North King Sunday evening.

The camp consumed a dozen eggs and nine quarts of milk daily.

Messrs. Radford and Burton visited camp Sunday with the steam yacht "Stranger" and as time was up for this season we struck our tents and returned with them on Monday morning.

No better assurance of the benefit to be derived from camp life could be had than the significant fact that every house complaints from householders whose houses have been connect with the sewers.

Flushing tanks are provided at the head of sewers, which are flushed every day, and although some of the sewers have been used for more than four months, there is no silt in them. The gradients of the drainage system are said to be so good that with proper arrangements of flushing the drains, no nuisance need be feared. By making the house connections already completed it has been possible to discontinue the use of 452 cesspits, which polluted the soil, water and air, and which are so strongly denounced by all the sanitary authorities. The total area included in the scheme is about 91 acres, and 32½ acres of this area, containing 1500 houses, having been finished, the municipality have decided on sanitary and economic grounds to finish the complete scheme, by which the boon of sanitation will be extended to about 5000 houses. The sewage farm is also said to be a success; the land is sandy loam, and readily absorbs large quantities of sullage water.

It is confidently expected that, taking into consideration the intrinsic value of the water as well as the manifold ingredients of the sewage, the drainage scheme properly managed will not only be a sanitary reform, but will repay well from the crops it will help to produce.

A Bee and Bird Duel.

Next to a battle of ants, where the tiny creatures fight in regiments, about the smallest battle that can be imagined is a duel between a bee and a humming-bird over the honey in a flower-garden. The battle occurred in Portland, Oregon, where a humming-bird with an angry dash expressed its disapproval of the presence of a big bumble-bee in the same place.

An observer thus describes it: The bee fled, but he did not leave the tree. He dashed back and forth among the branches and white blossoms, the humming-bird in close pursuit. Where will you find another pair that could dodge and dart equal to these? They were like flashes of light, yet the pursuer followed the track of the pursued, turning when the bee turned. In short, the bird and the bee controlled the movements of their bodies more quickly than he could control the movement of his eyes. The chase was over in half the time that it takes to tell it, but the excitement of a pack of hounds after a fox was no greater. The bee escaped, the bird giving up the chase and alighting on a twig. It couldn't have been chasing the bee for food, and there is no possible explanation of its unprovoked attack except that it wished to have all the honey itself.

Capture of a Big Halibut.

The boy or girl who eats halibut steak for breakfast may know very little about the big fish from which it was cut. The London Field describes a halibut recently landed at Stromness, Orkney, which measured 6 feet 10 inches in length, and weighed no less than 245 pounds. The fish was discovered by two lads who were engaged in hauling lobster creels at the back of the Holms, a distance of about a mile and a half from Stromness Pier. It was observed in the sand, apparently asleep; and as they had nothing with which to attempt a capture, they marked the spot, and returned home to tell their father.

Armed with a kind of harpoon, to which a line was attached, they went back to the place, and found that the huge fish had not moved. Carefully watching an opportunity, the father succeeded in planting the harpoon in the back of the halibut. The weapon entered the spine, and rendered the fish powerless, but on account of its size and weight it was only after considerable difficulty that it was got on board. It proved a splendid specimen of the halibut, and was in a first-rate condition. In its stomach was found a variety of small fish, which weighed upward of six pounds.

NAPANEE, FRIDAY, AUG. 11th, 1893.

THE auction sale of a number of islands in the Thousand Island group has been indefinitely postponed. The press, both conservative and liberal, were strongly opposed to the sale. The government has backed down, and it is not now likely that any of the islands will be sold until parliament meets.

At a political meeting held by Mr. Laurier, in Two Mountains, Mr. Tarte spoke thus of Mr. Ouimet: "Once the French-Canadian race had been represented in the Ministry by men like Lafontaine and Cartier. Now their leader was Mr. Ouimet! How had he become a Minister? There had once been a meeting in Mr. Chapleau's residence in Ottawa which was attended by Mr. Chapleau, Mr. Girouard, M. P. of Jacques Cartier, Mr. Ouimet and the speaker. Mr. Girouard and Mr. Ouimet at that meeting bound themselves not to accept a portfolio in the cabinet then undergoing formation unless Mr. Chapleau was given the portfolio of Railways and Canals. After returning to Montreal each got a telegram recalling him to Ottawa. When they got there Mr. Girouard was offered a portfolio, but he said: "Do you take me for a traitor?" and declined. Then it was offered to Mr. Ouimet, who accepted it. Mr. Ouimet was a traitor. Yet he was the chief of the French-Canadians. During the North-west troubles of 1885, Mr. Ouimet was too cowardly to accompany his battalion to the field of battle. He never went out of his car, and his decision to return East was so severely commented upon in the press of Ontario that he (Mr. Tarte) sent him about fifty telegrams pleading with him for the sake of the honor of his race to return and lead his troops; but all in vain. Yet this General of the Northwest was now the successor to Lafontaine and Cartier!"

The wonderful adherence to old-time methods by the French-Canadians, or "habitants," is being severely criticised of late. Among others, a contributor to Saturday Night says some pointed truths, worth reprinting, about noted French-Canadians. He says:

Ex-Premier Mercier of Quebec has been over to Boston and Fall River on one of those periodic visits of French-Canadian politicians, and as usual has stowed away a few square meals and made a few maudlin speeches. He urged his compatriots in the United States to organize as Irishmen had done and raise money to assist in liberating Quebec from the thralldom of English rule. He didn't explain what he proposed doing with the money, but since he was driven from the treasury benches he must feel the need of some public or trust fund with which he could be on companionable terms. He said his compatriots in the United States had gone there "to gain an honest living, which they are denied in their own country, owing to the narrow English constitution and influences they lived under." There is an aroma of dishonesty floating about the name, person and cardinal breaches of Count Mercier, that makes this statement extremely funny. Judging from the record of many French-Canadian public men there is some "influence" that prevents them making honest livings, but it is not clear to the naked eye how the constitution and English influence is responsible for their dishonesty. The "narrow constitution" was broad enough for the electorate of the Province to parade upon last election day and drive this brigand chief and his organization to the four winds. English influence has furnished the money that supported

Holloway's Pills.

In cases of chronic indigestion, disordered liver, and general debility, these Pills are wonderfully effective. They indeed have so general and powerful an effect on the whole system that they clear away or ward off most of the ills that flesh is heir to. They cleanse the bowels, purify the blood, correct the bile, give tone to the stomach, excite a healthy appetite, produce sound sleep, and impart increased energy to both mind and body. The admirable properties of these far-famed Pills are too highly appreciated to require any encomium here, as they are resorted to by rich and poor of every nation. They cure their effect are not temporary or impure, but they bring about a marvellous and most beneficial change throughout the entire body, and enable it with renovated powers to resist the approach of all future attacks.

An Anecdote of Artemus Ward.

Artemus Ward's companions were a band of brilliant young Bohemians for whose kind the metropolis now contains no room. They were the last of their kind, and most of them lived but brief lives. They produced much that was brilliant, but nothing that lasted. Artemus alone won enduring fame. The others were writers, actors and minstrels. The brothers Dan and Neil Bryant were eminent members of the clan, together with Charles Dawson Shanly and a shining cluster of young men about town. One of the latter, who lived to become a staid merchant, used to relate with glee how on leaving the little theater in Twenty-third street late one evening in company with Artemus, Shanly and Neil Bryant the trio broke out in joyous carol.

The song was interrupted by one of the then despised metropolitan policemen, who roughly ordered them to stop the noise. At this rude interruption Artemus stopped his song, and turning threw himself upon the broad bosom of the astonished policeman and gave way to a gush of passionate tears. His fellow-singers were half choked by his warm embrace, begged him to desist, which he did with the declaration that "the metropolitan policeman is the noblest work of God." This sentimentary

the centre of the highways at noonday,
and the lonesome crowds could bespeak
their solitude from the rickety housetops. Wherever the Anglo-Canadian has been able to wedge his way through the repelling front of French-Canadian exclusiveness there has immediately arisen the smoke of commerce and the song of the reaper voicing his gladness for abundant crops. Almost by violence have been introduced into Quebec those modern ideas and methods of life and government that distinguishes this century from the last, and yet, here is Mercier going to Boston with the story that "the narrow English constitution and influence" prevent his countrymen from progressing as they should.

But another French-Canadian has spoken and without intending it, has furnished a prompt and effectual answer to the absurd statements of Mercier. Hon. Wilfred Laurier has raised up trouble for himself by speaking the truth, frankly telling his compatriots that they live too much in the past, hugging old ideas and resisting the spirit of the age and country to which they belong. His speech was delivered at the recent St. Jean Baptiste banquet, and among other things he said: "In this profoundly Catholic country the ideas of Louis Veuillot have long been current, and many others among us, after his example, exalting the past, have like him anathematized modern liberty, modern progress. Let those who remember that Louis Veuillot when alive filled his books with imprecations upon all the developments of modern life, the Parliamentary regime, steam, electricity, railways, telegraph, received on his deathbed by telegraph, yes, by telegraph, the Pontifical benediction, and that all the objects of his imprecations
have received in our day the approbation of the great Pope Leo XIII. This fearless statement, the courage of which can but dimly be understood in Ontario has raised a great rumpus in the Ultramontane element of Lower Canada. But, there it is in a nutshell, and Laurier has defended his position by writing letters to the press, showing that Veuillot's teachings are as he indicated in his speech. This living in the past, this standing dead and indifferent to the achievements of modern invention and ignoring the mechanical and social advancements, is the real cause of the chronic ailment in Quebec. To be sure, if one family, or a dozen families, or a hundred families, pull up by the roots, go far away and merge with a progressive people, they will get along better than those who remain at home under the pall of such reactionary influences as Laurier depicts. In the first place those who have the energy to pull up and escape from a numbing influence that they in their single strength are unable to resist, are more highly endowed with the elements that make up success, than those who sym-bit and drone their lives away. In the second place they have moved out into the nineteenth century.

Laurier, with knightly courage, has thrown down the gauntlet to the formidable enemy of his race. The truths which he speaks have often been spoken in malice and bitterness by public men and journalists in Ontario,
but advice is never taken from outsiders who study to be offensive. At last the most distinguished and popular of the French-Canadians, whose faith will be unquestioned, has set himself the task of overcoming an evil with which he and his kind have all along dallied and made peace. MACK.

Cremation and Disease.

In the efforts to prevent the spread of infectious diseases there is no drawback so difficult to overcome as the burial of the dead in the ground. The microbes of disease are very tenacious of life, and they will remain with the dead for a period of 100 years. The microbes may die, but their spores or seeds have the vitality to live, and upon coming into favorable surroundings they will quickly develop. In digging up old burial places, scarlet fever, diphtheria and smallpox have been let loose so that epidemics followed. In Quebec a smallpox epidemic followed the digging up a cemetery where the people had been buried for over 100 years. Similarly in England
a scarlet fever epidemic followed the removal of dead bodies from a country
parish churchyard.

But occasionally epidemics seem to break out in the neighborhood of cemeteries without any apparent cause. Darwin, however, showed 20 years ago that earthworms completely turned over the soil of every part of the earth in a given time, and now Pasteur comes out with positive proof that the earthworms
bring up disease germs and microbes from dead bodies buried several feet below the surface. Those who die from infectious diseases are not only menaces to their friends while they are sick, but their dead bodies are constant dangers to the public health.—Yankee Blade.

An Arkansas Miracle.

A REMARKABLE STORY OF INTEREST TO EVERY WOMAN.

A Young Woman Who Was Literally Faded Away—Physicians Pronounced Her Case Hopeless—How She Was Saved.

From the Arkansas Democrat.

The story of renewed health told in the following article has been carefully investigated by the Democrat, and is of the deepest interest to all parents. The condition of Miss Clement's is that of thousands of girls in our land, whose health and vitality is slowly but surely being sapped away. Pale, listless and sallow girls meet us on every side, and unless the same prompt measures are taken as in the case of Miss Clement's, a premature grave is the inevitable result. Lulu Clements, the nineteen-year-old daughter of Mrs. Cera V. Clements, one of the most prominent residents of London, Ark., was attacked with a mysterious, wasting disease over a year ago, and despite the strenuous efforts of the local physicians she continued to grow worse. Her blood had turned to water, she suffered intense agony, and was almost ready to give up life when relief came. Her story is best told as related by her mother to a Democrat reporter:—

"In the fall of 1892 my daughter began to show signs that some disease was wrecking her system. Despite the constant attention of local physicians she grew worse. Her complexion was pale, and she became almost as white as marble. She complained of heart palpitation. Her feet and hands were cold, and she was almost driven into hysterics by racking headaches and backaches and shortness of breath and other distressing symptoms. All these conditions betoken anemia, or in other words watery and impoverished condition of the blood, which could not perform the functions of nature. She had no appetite; for many days she did not eat enough for a child to subsist on."

"Her condition grew from bad to worse, and becoming alarmed, I sent her to prominent physicians in Virginia, Tennessee and Little Rock. All efforts of this nature to regain her health proved fruitless. Patent medicines of many kinds were tried and given thorough tests, but without any apparent effect towards improving the patient."

"Myself and daughter had almost given up in despair, having almost concluded that a restoration of her health was an impossibility. In the Arkansas Democrat I espied an advertisement of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People, which claimed that they would give ready relief to persons suffering from a disease the symptoms of which were the same as in the case of my daughter. I purchased some of the pills, and commenced giving my daughter three pills a day. Before the first box had been taken an improvement was noticed. Color in her face was noticed and her appetite returned. The terrible headaches and backaches ceased, and she could breathe more freely. When the fourth box had been taken she was entirely well, and in a few days then has enjoyed excellent health. She is now robust and full of life, making our family happy once more. Quite a contrast to the situation six months ago, when everybody thought she would die."

"I think 'Pink Pills' the best medicine in the world for the blood, and physicians recommended them only after a thorough trial. I have been restored to health by its use. Mrs. Henry Brown was in a very bad condition. She tried the Pink Pills, when she improved rapidly and is now a very healthy woman."

Druggists say that Dr. Williams' Pink Pills have an enormous sale, and from all quarters come glowing reports of results following their use. In very many cases the good work has been accomplished after eminent physicians had failed, and pronounced the patient beyond the hope of human aid. An analysis shows that Dr. Williams' Pink Pills contain in a condensed form all the elements necessary to give new life and richness to the blood, and restore shattered nerves. They are an unfailing specific for such diseases as locomotor ataxia, partial paralysis, St. Vitus' dance, sciatica, neuralgia, rheumatism, nervous headache, the after effects of la grippe, palpitation of the heart, pale and sallow complexions, nervous prostration; all diseases depending upon vitiated humors in the blood, such as scrofula, chronic erysipelas, etc. They are also a specific for troubles peculiar to females, such as suppressions, irregularities, and all forms of weakness. They build up the blood, and restore the glow of health to pale and sallow cheeks. In men they effect a radical cure in all cases arising from mental worry, overwork, or excesses of whatever nature.

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills are manufactured by the Dr. Williams' Medicine Company, Brockville, Ont., and Schenectady, N. Y., and are sold in boxes (never in loose form by the dozen or hundred, and the public are cautioned against numerous imitations sold in this shape) at 50 cents a box or six boxes for $2.50, and may be had of all druggists or direct by mail from Dr. Williams' Medicine Company, from either address.

KNELL OF THE SHERMAN BILL

PLAINLY SOUNDED IN CLEVELAND'S MESSAGE TO CONGRESS.

The Monetary Depression in the States
Due to the Legislation Touching the Purchase and Coinage of Silver—The Remedy Pointed Out.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 9.—The President's message to Congress is as follows:

To the Congress of the United States:

The existence of an alarming and extraordinary business situation, involving the welfare and prosperity of all our people, has constrained me to call together in extra session the people's representatives in Congress, to the end that through a wise and patriotic exercise of the legislative duty with which they solely are charged present evils may be mitigated and dangers threatening the future may be averted. Our unfortunate financial plight is not the result of untoward events, nor of conditions related to our natural resources, nor is it traceable to any of the afflictions which frequently check national growth or prosperity. With plenteous crops, with abundant promise of remunerative production and manufacture, with unusual invitation to safe investment, and with satisfactory assurance to business enterprise, suddenly financial distrust and fear have sprung up on every side. Numerous moneyed institutions have suspended because abundant assets were not immediately available to meet the demands of frightened depositors. Surviving corporations and individuals are content to keep in hand the money they are usually anxious to loan, and those engaged in legitimate business are surprised to find that the securities they offer for loans, though heretofore satisfactory, are no longer accepted. Values supposed to be fixed are fast becoming conjectural and loss and failure have involved every branch of business.

I believe these things are principally chargeable to Congressional legislation, touching the purchase and coinage of silver by the general government. This legislation is embodied in a statute passed on July 14, 1890, which was the culmination of much agitation on the subject involved, and which may be considered a truce after a long struggle between the advocates of free silver coinage and those intending to be more con-such an arrangement so long as we are willing to continue our attempt to accomplish the result single-handed.

The knowledge in business circles among our own people that our government cannot make its fiat equivalent to intrinsic value, nor keep inferior money on a parity with superior money by its own independent effort has resulted in such a lack of confidence at home in the stability of currency values that capital refuses its aid to new enterprises, while millions are withdrawn from the channels of trade and commerce to become idle and unproductive in the hands of timid owners. Foreign investors, equally alert, not only decline to purchase American securities but make haste to sacrifice those which they already have. It does not meet the situation to say apprehension in regard to the future of our finance is groundless, and that there is no reason for lack of confidence in the purposes or power of the Government in the premises. The very existence of this apprehension and lack of confidence, however caused, is a menace which ought not for a moment to be disregarded. Possibly if the undertaking we have in hand were the maintenance of a specific known quantity of silver as the parity with gold our ability to do so might be estimated and gauged, and perhaps in view of our unparalleled growth and resources might be favorably passed upon. But when our avowed endeavor is to maintain such parity in regard to an amount of silver increasing at the rate of $50,000,000 yearly, with no fixed termination to such increase, it can hardly be said that a problem is presented whose solution is free from doubt.

The people of the United States are entitled to a sound and stable currency and to money recognized as such on every exchange and in every market of the world. The Government has no right to injure them by financial experiments opposed to the policy and practice of other civilized states, nor is it justified in permitting an exaggerated and unreasonable reliance on our national strength and ability to jeopardize the soundness of the people's money. This matter rises above the plane of party politics, its wise and proper concern every business and calling and sustains every household in the land. There is one important aspect of the subject, which especially should never be overlooked. At times like the present, when the evils of unsound finance threaten us, the speculator may anticipate a harvest gathered from the misfortune of others, the capitalist may protect himself by hoarding or may even find profit in the fluctuation of speedily enact such laws as will effectuate and maintain those opinions.

Laid on the table.

REPUBLICANS IN CAUCUS.

Tariff Meddling Partially Blamed for the Lack of Confidence.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 9.—The Republican Senators held a caucus in the rooms of Senator Sherman and discussed the situation from various points of view. The senators from the west mingled freely with the gold men from the east and talked over financial affairs in an unimpassioned manner.

There was one thing upon which senators agreed, however, they might differ on other matters, and that was that the Sherman law was not alone responsible for the lack of confidence now existing in the minds of the people.

One senator made a speech in which he took the ground that the fear of interference by the Democrats with the tariff had done more than anything else to sow seeds of distrust throughout the land, a sentiment voiced by others present.

No fixed policy was determined upon. It was agreed that the Democrats must assume the responsibility for all that was done, but at the same time Republicans would be guided by patriotic impulses and do what they thought was proper to help the country in remedying evils that were believed to exist.

A caucus of those favoring repeal was held, but adjourned on learning that the silver men would meet to-day.

AN UNNATURAL SON.

Killed His Father Because He Ate Too Much.

PARIS, Aug. 9.—A specimen of human nature was yesterday sentenced to death by the Tarn Assize Court. Emile Veyrier, nicknamed Charbon, a farmer, killed his aged father because, as he said, "the old man ate too much and was not good for anything."

The father, finding himself old, had handed over all his fortune to his son on the understanding that the latter should give him food and shelter to the end of his days.

At his death the old man was to undergo all kinds of insults. He was reproached for costing too much and being useless. The son tried to make him work. At length the old man could stand such treatment no longer. He threatened to leave his son and get back his money through the law courts.

age and those intending to be more conservative. Undoubtedly the monthly purchases by the Government of 4,500,000 ounces of silver enforced under that statute were regarded by those interested in silver production as a certain guarantee of its increase in price. The result, however, has been entirely different, for immediately following a spasmodic and slight rise the price of silver began to fall after the passage of the act, and has since reached the lowest point ever known. This disappointing result has led to renewed and persistent effort in the direction of free silver coinage. Meanwhile not only are the evil effects of the operation of the present law constantly accumulating, but the result to which its execution must inevitably lead is becoming palpable to all who give the least heed to financial subjects. This law provides that in payment for the four million and five hundred thousand pounds of silver bullion which the Secretary of the Treasury is commanded to purchase monthly there shall be issued Treasury notes, redeemable on demand in gold or silver coin, at the discretion of the Secretary of the Treasury, and that said notes may be re-issued. It is, however, declared in the Act to be "the established policy of the United States to maintain the two metals on a parity with each other upon the present legal rates, or such ratio as may be provided by law."

This declaration so controls the action of the Secretary of the Treasury as to prevent his exercising the discretion nominally vested in him, if by such action the parity between gold and silver may be disturbed. Manifestly a refusal by the Secretary to pay these treasury notes in gold, if demanded, would necessarily result in their discredit and depreciation as obligations payable only in silver, and would destroy the parity between the two metals by establishing a discrimination in favor of gold. Up to July 15, 1893, these notes had been issued in payment of silver bullion purchased to the amount of more than $147,000,000. While all but a very small quantity of this bullion remains uncoined and without usefulness in the Treasury, many of the notes given in its purchase have been paid in gold. This is illustrated by the statement that between May 1, 1892, and July 15, 1893, the notes of this kind issued in payment for silver bullion amounting to little more than $54,000,000 were paid by the Treasury in gold for the redemption of such notes. The policy necessarily adopted of paying these notes in gold has not spared the gold reserve of $100,000,000 long ago set aside by the Government for the redemption of other notes, for this fund has already been subjected to the payment of new obligations amounting to about one hundred and fifty millions of dollars on account of silver purchases, and has, as a consequence, for the first time since its creation, been encroached upon.

We have thus made the depletion of our gold easy, and have tempted other and more appreciative nations to add to their stock. That the opportunity we have offered has not been neglected is shown by the large amounts of gold which have been recently drawn from our treasury and exported to increase the financial strength of foreign nations. The excess of exports of gold over its imports for the year ending June 30, 1893, amounted to more than eighty-seven and a half millions of dollars. Between the first day of July, 1890, and the 15th day of July, 1893, the gold coin and bullion in our treasury decreased more than one hundred and thirty-two millions of dollars, while during the same period the silver coin and bullion in the treasury increased more than one hundred and forty-seven millions of dollars.

Unless Government bonds are to be constantly issued and sold to replenish our gold only to be again exhausted it is apparent that the operation of the silver purchase law now in force leads in the direction of the entire substitution of silver for the gold in the Government treasury, and that this must be followed by the payment of all Government obligations in depreciated silver. At this stage gold and silver must part company and the Government must fall in its established policy to maintain the metals on a parity with each other.

Given over to the exclusive use of a currency greatly depreciated according to the standard of the commercial world, we could no longer claim a place among nations of the first class, nor could our Government claim a performance of its obligation so far as such an obligation has been imposed upon it to provide for the use of the people the best and safest money. If, as many of its friends claim, silver ought to occupy a larger place in our currency and the currency of the world—through international co-operation and agreement—it is obvious that the United States will not be in a position to gain a hearing in favor of values, but the wage earner—the first to be injured by a depreciated currency and the last to receive the benefits of its correction—is practically defenceless. He relies for work upon the ventures of confident and contented capital. This failing him, his condition is without alleviation, for he can neither prey on the misfortunes nor hoard his labors. One of the greatest statesmen of our country has known, speaking more than 50 years ago, when a derangement of currency had caused commercial distress, said: "The very man of all others who has the deepest interest in a sound currency and who suffers most by mischievous legislation in money matters is the man who earns his daily bread by his daily toil." These words are as pertinent now as on the day they were uttered and ought to impressively remind us that a failure in the discharge of our duty at this time must especially injure those of our countrymen who labor and who, because of their number and condition, are entitled to the most watchful care of that Government.

It is of the utmost importance that such relief as Congress can afford in the existing situation be afforded at once. The maxim, "He gives twice who gives quickly," is directly applicable. It may be true that the embarrassments from which the business of the country is suffering arise as much from evils apprehended as from those actually existing. We may hope, too, that calm counsels will prevail, and that neither the capitalists nor the wage-earners will give way to unreasoning panic and sacrifice their property or their interests under the influence of exaggerated fears. Nevertheless every day's delay in removing one of the plain and principal causes of the present state of things enlarges the responsibility of the Government for its existence. Whatever else the people have a right to expect from Congress, they may certainly demand that legislation condemned by the ordeal of three years' disastrous experience shall be removed from the statute book as soon as their representatives can legitimately deal with it.

It was my purpose to summon Congress in special session early in the coming September that we might enter promptly upon the work of tariff reform, which the true interests of the country clearly demand, which so large a majority of the people, as shown by their suffrages, desire and expect, and to the accomplishment of which every effort of the present administration is pledged. But while tariff reform has lost nothing of its immediate and permanent importance, and must in the near future engage the attention of Congress, it has seemed to me that the financial condition of the country should at once and before all other subjects be considered by your honorable body.

I earnestly recommend the prompt repeal of the provisions of the act passed July 14, 1890, authorizing the purchase of silver bullion, and that other legislative action may put beyond all doubt or mistake the intention and the ability of the Government to fulfill its pecuniary obligations in money universally recognized by all civilized countries.

GROVER CLEVELAND,

Executive Mansion, Aug. 7, 1893.

Listened to With Deep Interest.

Never in the history of Congress has such interest been manifested in a state document as was shown by the members of the House in the reading of the President's message. As the clerk began a hush fell over the House and nearly every member followed the words of the message with intense attention. Were it not that local papers had already issued extras containing the full text of the message the situation would have been painful in its intensity. When the clerk read the signature, "Grover Cleveland," a general wave of applause swept over the hall.

The first bill introduced in the Senate this session was that of Senator Hill, which provides for the repeal of sections 1, 3 and 4 of the Sherman Act and declares that this repeal is not to be considered as an abandonment of bi-metallicism, but that the policy of the Government shall be the maintenance of gold and silver as the standard of money metal, to the accomplishment of which the attention of the Government shall be steadily and safely directed.

A resolution was introduced by Mr. Vest declaring that the American policy from tradition and interest favors bi-metallicism and the free and unlimited coinage of both gold and silver without discriminating against either metal; that it is the established policy of the United States to maintain parity of the two metals, so that the debt-paying and purchasing power of every dollar shall be at all times equal; and that it is the duty of Congress to money through the law courts.

The idea of losing the money drove the son to extreme measures. He imprisoned his father in a large cask. But before the old man was quite starved to death the son got impatient and strangled him.

ST. MARY'S UNLIGHTED.

A Flax Mill and the Electric Light Station Burned.

ST. MARY'S, Ont., Aug. 9.—At about 7.30 o'clock last evening fire broke out in the flax mill owned by Messrs. Weir & Weir. The building and machinery are a total wreck, but the large sheds full of seeded flax and the stacks adjoining were saved. Messrs. Weir & Weir's loss in building and machinery is about $3000, and stock $1000, upon which, it is thought, there is only $1000 insurance. The electric light station was in the building, and the loss on it will be in the neighborhood of $3500, no insurance. The town is now in darkness.

HAMILTON LEADWORKS BURNED.

The Damage Will Reach Ten Thousand Dollars.

HAMILTON, Aug. 9.—Last evening fire broke out in Wilson's lead smelting works, a frame building. The firemen found the building enveloped in flames, and a G.T.R. boxcar on the switch near by was also on fire. The building and car were almost entirely destroyed. The plant in the building was also badly damaged. The loss is between $7000 and $10,000, and there is said to be little, if any, insurance. Mr. Wilson, the proprietor, is in Petrolia at present. There were 40 tons of the manufactured lead just ready for shipment, which was all destroyed.

Fort Pitt Factories in Ashes.

PITTSBURGH, Aug. 9.—A disastrous fire occurred at Rankin Station, on the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad, yesterday morning, in which the Fort Pitt tanneries and the offices and warehouse of the Consolidated Wire Company were destroyed. Loss $125,000; insurance not known.

SHE WAS TETHERED OUT.

How Mrs. Funny-body Was Treated at Regina.

REGINA, N.W.T., Aug. 9.—A railroad named Osker was tried by the police authorities on Monday morning and sentenced to serve two months for supplying liquor to a squaw. The squaw in question was Mrs. Funny-body. When found by the police she was hobbled and tethered out. Her lord and master explained that he had been compelled to secure her in this wise to save his life; she thirsted for his blood. The police left Mrs. Funny-body to be dealt with by the Indian commissioner.

THE LUCKEY MURDER.

Mrs. Luckey's False Teeth Identified by a Brandon Dentist.

WINNIPEG, Man., Aug. 9.—Detective Greer is at Brandon in connection with the Luckey murder case, the trial of which takes place at Brockville in October.

As a result of his visit, Dr. Dickson, dentist, will testify at the hearing as to the identification of the set of teeth, which he made in this city for the victim, Mrs. Luckey, about two years ago.

This testimony will form an important link in the Crown's chain of evidence.

AN AUGUST SNOWSTORM.

The First One Massachusetts Has Had for Forty-six Years.

HAVERHILL, Mass., Aug. 9.—The first snowstorm that has visited Massachusetts in August in 46 years raged here last night and yesterday. Hail and lightning accompanied the snow and much damage was done.

At Amesbury the whole country was covered with a white blanket and there drifted a foot deep in the streets.

The wind was terrific.

Drowned While Bathing.

CARDINAL, Aug. 9.—A workman on the new Methodist church, named Corbett, from North Augusta, Saturday night went in bathing in the river. A friend thought he noticed a peculiar look on Corbett's face, and asked him if he were sick. The young man replied "No," but immediately sank and never returned to the surface. The body was found.

Found Dead in the Creek.

HAMILTON, Aug. 9.—James Adamson, a wealthy farmer near Carlisle, was found dead in the creek that runs through his farm about 4 o'clock yesterday afternoon. Deceased was mentally unbalanced, and it is presumed he committed suicide.

INDIA'S FINANCIAL CRIME.

MOST FLAGRANT ACT OF PUBLIC PLUNDER EVER PERPETRATED.

Such Is the Opinion of English Conservatives, Who Blame the Gladstone Gov. ernment as "the Author of It All!"—
A Debate in the House.

LONDON, Aug. 9.—Mr. Gladstone announced in the House of Commons to-day that the Government intended to hold an autumn session of Parliament.

Mr. Gladstone added that no adjournment would be had until the remaining stages of the Home Rule bill were passed and supply was voted.

The Right Hon. Henry Chaplin, President of the Board of Agriculture in Lord Salisbury's Cabinet, asked leave to move
the adjournment of the House in order that the changes in the Indian currency system might be discussed. In speaking to his motion Mr. Chaplin blamed the Government for persistently obstructing discussion of the question. The changing of the Indian currency system before allowing Parliament to express an opinion on the change was a matter of urgent public importance. The Government of India had escaped a deficit by tampering with the currency and artificially raising the value of the rupee. The effect of this action had been to lower the pro tanto value of everything else.

The Government had virtually mulcted
the natives of India by methods which it had hoped would not be discovered. By a single stroke the Government had depreciated by 15 per cent. the value of the silver held by the population of India. A more flagrant act of public plunder had never been perpetrated by a civilized government. The result had been a convulsed financial situation from China to Peru.

If the repeal by the American Congress
of the Sherman Act should become inevitable, it would be partly due to the error that had been committed in India. A further fall in the price of silver must follow that the Sherman Act.

It is known, in consequence, demanded to know whether the Government before taking this action in India had held any communication with the United States Government and whether the Government,
with their eyes now opened, contemplated persisting in the great wrong. The loss to holders of silver securities, he said, was already £200,000,000 for which the Govern-

BANKS REFUSE CURRENCY TO MEET THE MONTHLY PAY-ROLL.

The New York Central's Monthly Wage
Bill Is $800,000, and Currency Is So Scarce That the Chemical Bank Cannot Furnish It.

NEW YORK, Aug. 9.—The great scarcity of currency at present is very conspicuously shown in the refusal of the Chemical Bank to make up the amount of the New York Central Railway Co.'s pay-roll.

Mr. Quinlan, the cashier of the bank,
when spoken to upon the subject to-day
said: "We have simply declined to the extent of paying out $700,000 in currency, the amount heretofore required by the company. It is unreasonable to expect us to supply so large a sum in currency at this time when there is so little in circulation. Mr. Depew, president of the N.Y.C., was seen at his office
this afternoon. In relation to the matter he stated that the bank's refusal to make up the monthly pay-roll was due entirely to scarcity of currency. "Our pay-roll," he said, "amounts to $800,000 a month. The Chemical Bank is our depository, and will so continue. It will give us just what currency it can, but the present scarcity renders it unable to accommodate us
as formerly and we must collect it elsewhere. It has been suggested that we issue our own notes, but we will not have to resort to that measure, as the money is already in sight. It would besides hardly be lawful, though in the crisis of 1873 many merchants issued notes from $5 upwards." Mr. Depew said that he could not state just exactly how the currency would be collected. There would be, however, no trouble about collecting the requisite amount.

There is no friction whatever between the bank and the railroad company. Its inability to supply the company with currency is attributable entirely to the extraordinary state of the money market.

There never has been a time when currency was so scarce as it is at present, and it is with this a sufficiency holder of silver securities, he said, was already $200,000,000, for which the Government should be held responsible. Their action could not fail to appreciate gold throughout the world, while increasing commercial difficulties everywhere.

Sir William Vernon Harcourt declined to enter into a general argument, but he was quite prepared to defend the change in India. The course taken by the Government, he said, was indicated to them by the Royal Commission of 1888.

Referring to the proposals of the United States at the International Monetary Conference in Brussels, Sir William said that the United States had proposed that the conference should entertain the question of some measure for increasing the use of silver in the currencies of nations. As a matter of fact, England had been almost the only power prepared to support such a resolution. As far as it would not affect internal British currency, the India currency question had been reserved.

In conclusion, Sir William denied that the populace in India were suffering as much as they were alleged to be.

Arthur James Balfour, Conservative leader, said that this was not a political question. The Government had been driven to commit a financial crime and they appeared to think that they ought not submit to criticism of their conduct. The speech just made by the Chancellor of the Exchequer was virtually a sneer at the present financial situation.

Attacks on the Government's course were also made by Sir John Lubbock and Leonard Courtney.

Dadabhai Naoroji, the Parsee member, protested that the natives of India already felt the pinch of the change, and that they would soon awake through suffering to the wrong done them.

Sir William Harcourt moved the closure of the debate. The motion was carried without a division.

INDIA'S SILVER HOARDS.

Variouly Declared in the House of Lords as Enormous and as Over-estimated.

LONDON, Aug. 9.—In the House of Lords yesterday the Earl of Northbrook, some time Governor-General of India, called the attention of the House to the existing obstacles to the importation of manufactured silver from India, arising from the compulsory Hall Mark law in England.

He said that the silver in the hands of the people of India was estimated to amount in value to from £130,000,000 to £150,000,000.

Owing to the adoption of the free coinage of silver by the Indian Government, the people were unable to find a market for their metal and were sustaining enormous losses.

The abolition of the Hall Mark law in England, together with free trade in articles manufactured from silver would, he declared, mitigate the evils brought about by the stoppage of free coinage.

The Earl of Kimberley, Secretary of State for India, admitted that it was desirable to change the law. Silver manufacturers in England were, however, opposed to the abolition of the law compelling their goods to bear a hall mark. He saw no reason why the various standards of manufactured silver ought not to exist in England the same as in other countries.

Lord Herschel, Lord High Chancellor, said he had been advised that there were no large hoards of silver in India. During the famine vast quantities of silver ornaments had been sent to the mints, where they had been converted into rupees. The estimate as to the value of the ornaments among the natives was a greatly overrated one.

The Earl of Northbrook moved that the Secretary of State for India submit to the House the papers he had on the subject.

The Earl of Kimberley promised that he would do so.

Accidentally Shot Himself.

BELLEVILLE, Aug. 9.—(George Tennyson, a farmer near Bancroft, went shooting in the bush. He had not been long away from his house when the report of a gun was heard. He did not make his appearance in the evening and a search resulted in his being found, apparently having been about to cross a stream on a log, shot through a vital part of the body and quite dead. Without doubt the shooting was quite accidental.

Powder Mills Blown Up.

St. Louis, Aug. 9.—The mills of the Phoenix Powder Company, on the Illinois side of the river, blew up yesterday. Two men were blown to atoms and several injured.

OTTAWA, Aug. 9.—Harry Mackay, son of William Mackay, one of the wealthiest lumbermen of the Ottawa Valley, gave notice yesterday of the application at next session of the Dominion Senate for divorce from Laura Estelle Stall, formerly of New York.

They have been married about a year, but lived together only a few months.

Mrs. Mackay came here from New York about a year and a half ago. She was a stranger, a pretty dark-eyed brunet of taking manners. She speedily became very good friends with a young man about town, and it is recalled that, having a falling out with him, she threatened suit for breach of promise of marriage, and at a meeting at the law office of Henderson & Beament created a sensation by going into hysterics and fainting.

The young man left the city in a hurry and Miss Stall met young Mackay. Their acquaintance progressed rapidly. The young man's father learned of it and forbade its continuance. Young Mackay soon after presented himself at the Church of the Dominicans with Miss Stall and, showing a marriage license, induced Rev. Father Gauthier to marry him, although the priest first took him aside and warned him.

The alliance, which was kept a strict secret, only lasted three or four months. Mrs. Mackay is said to be residing at present in Montreal.

Mackay applies for divorce on the grounds of misrepresentation and adultery. His father, who is worth several millions, is one of the best known men in this section of Canada and the family move in the best society of the Capital.

Zimmerman Wins at Chicago.

CHICAGO, Aug. 9.—The international meet of the League of American Wheelmen opened here yesterday before 15,000 spectators. Sanger Zimmerman's great rival, fell, was badly hurt and will likely stay off the track for some time.

Honors of the second day were divided between H. C. Tyler, the Eastern crack, and A. A. Zimmerman, whose 1/2 mile in 30.23 seconds is excelled only by his own world's record of 30.14 made at Detroit last week. Tyler voluntarily moved back from the 30-yard mark in the mile handicap to scratch in an effort to break the track record and succeeded handsomely by covering the distance in 2:11 2/5. This performance is second only to Sanger's mile at Milwaukee in 2:09 4/5.

Summaries:

One mile, 3 min. class—J. I. Brandenburg, Chicago, 1; M. Nelson, Chicago, 2; E. P. Richardson, 3. Time 2:38.

Socialists in Congress.

ZURICH, Aug. 9.—The International Socialist Congress continued its session yesterday. The question as to whether Anarchists and independent Socialists should be permitted to sit as delegates, was brought up again to-day and the question was reopened. It was finally decided to settle it by referring it to the Committee on Standing Orders.

A speedy stop should have been put to them long ago and the owners driven out of town.

Repaired.

The dam across the Napanee river just above the canal is being overhauled and repaired. For some time past there has been considerable water escaping through and under the dam, making the water in the canal very low in dry times, and causing considerable inconvenience to the factories using water power. When the dam is properly repaired so that there shall be no leak, it is hoped the water in the canal will be of sufficient volume the year around. The dam is being repaired under the supervision of Mr. Alf. Knight, agent for Sir Richard Cartwright.

On this trip. The day was exceedingly warm and fine enough to please everybody who loves sunshine.

Broke Jail

Charles Milsap, of Odessa, who is an inmate of the Napanee jail, awaiting trial on a charge of rape, committed on a Mrs. Clow, also of Odessa, broke jail on Tuesday escaping over the wall by means of two boards, which were used by the turnkey to drain buckets on and always left in the jail yard. The plan of escape was novel he placed one board up to the first window sill and climbing up it securely blocked a piece of cordwood in the crates. This done he reached the other board up and bracing it against the cordwood and the top of the wall, easily scaled it. A $50 reward was offered for his capture, which took place on Wednesday, he being found in the barn of Mr. Galbraith, north of Camden East.

Fire!

On Monday night last there was a little bonfire at the corner of Dundas and Robert streets, on the vacant lot belonging to Mrs. McNeill, where a number of empty cement barrels had been piled seemingly on purpose to be fired. At any rate the opportunity to have a little conflagration seems to have been too tempting for every one to resist, and we were not surprised to find the pile of barrels just nicely beginning to blaze up when the alarm roused the writer from a deep sleep. The fire did not last long, because the arrival of the reel and the application of a stream of water soon put it out. The corner lot where the barrels are placed may be a convenient spot to pile them on; but the temptation to put a match to such a prepared pile is too great, and the barrels should be removed or scattered. The firemen do not want to be roused out of their beds to quench fires of this kind.

The Sewer By-law.

At last meeting of the Town Council a by-law was introduced to raise the sum of $20,000 by debentures for the construction of sewers. The by-law was laid over because the intention of the council is only to raise such sums for sewer construction as is necessary from time to time, as requisitions of property owners call for the same. The by-law did not clearly express this intention but would seem to infer that the whole sum of $20,000 was to be raised at one time. As property owners on streets where sewers are constructed have to pay a large proportion of cost, only a few thousand dollars would be required from time to time. The money paid in by property owners is intended to form a sinking fund for payment of such debentures as may be issued. The by-law will likely be amended so as to set forth this mode of operation, and will be voted on at the same time as the Municipal Elections, thus saving the cost of a special vote on the question. It is claimed that the construction of sewers is a necessity; that the work being asked for by a certain number of property owners must be proceeded with; and that the raising of the money required from time to time by debentures is the best method of securing funds.

Presented with a Ring and Address.

Last week we mentioned that Mr. E. W. Scott, of Deseronto, formerly of Napanee, intended to sever his connections with the Big Store for the purpose of going into business on his own account. Last Saturday night before his departure he was tendered a handsome present, accompanied by an elaborate address by the employees of the store. The present consisted of a handsome gold ring, the three links of Oddfellowship being inscribed on a black background with two small diamonds occupying a place in each link. The Deseronto Tribune speaks in the following terms of Mr. Scott: For thirteen years Mr. Scott has been known as one of the most efficient members on the staff of the Big Store of the Rathbun Company and during that time he has proved uniformly courteous and obliging to customers and was held in high esteem by his employers. Thirteen years is a long time to be in one employ and during that period Mr. Scott has witnessed some sixty-two changes in the staff of the big establishment aside from those among cash boys and the tailoring department. Mr. Scott enters upon his new business with excellent prospects of success, and we feel confident that he will soon gain a large patronage from the public.

—The band will play in the Park on Wednesday evening next.

DOWNEY & VANLUVEN.

Boomed in a Rochester Paper.

A copy of the Rochester, N.Y., Union and Advertiser, of July 29th, 1893, has been handed us by a friend. The paper contains an illustrated page on Napanee.
Views of Dundas street, the volunteers of
No. 6 Company and the 47th Batt. Band, taken just before their going to camp by Photographer Hulett and a fishing party
down the bay, all excellently reproduced.
Also portraits of Dr. R. A. Leonard, mayor, the late Sir John A. Macdonald, Sir Richard Cartwright and a Napanee hopeful, the infant child of Coun. Anderson. The portraits are all from photos by Mr. F. Richardson and do him credit. A brief history of Napanee, some of which we extract, and which although not entirely new to most of our readers is refreshing to read when it comes from outsiders, is given below under the sub-headlines:—

THE "FLOUR CITY" OF ONTARIO FOUNDED
OVER A CENTURY AGO—A PRETTY LITTLE TOWN WHERE MANY AMERICANS GO IN QUEST OF SUMMER RECREATION AND SPORT
—THE SCENE OF SIR JOHN A. MACDONALD'S
FIRST VENTURE IN THE PRACTICE OF LAW.

Napanee, with a population of about 4,000, is the Flour City of Ontario, Canada,
and derives its name from the Indian word Now-pau-nay, which signifies flour. When Rochester was a wilderness of woods, Napanee was a flourishing settlement, where farmers for many miles around took their wheat to be ground at the old Cartwright mill, owned by the ancestor of the present Sir Richard Cartwright, late minister of finance in the Dominion cabinet. The old mill still stands a venerable landmark,
around which have arisen other mills, factories and a goodly town which has played its part in the history of Ontario.

Napanee is beautifully situated on the river of that name near a thirty foot fall,
which supplies power to the mills and factories. The river flows out to the famous Bay of Quinte, rendered historical by the early settlers and as being the region
wherein many United Empire loyalists settled after the revolution.

For over a century Napanee has been an active commercial centre. It is located in the townships of Richmond and Freder-icksburgh and is the county seat of Lennox
and Addington.

Though it has not kept pace with its American cousin, Rochester, in a commercial way, it has kept well to the front in

A Scotch Presbyterian writes to the Church Times: The Oxford revival has fairly reached Scotland and is beginning to make itself felt. No doubt a great number are content with adopting a few improvements in the conduct of divine worship.
They observe the christian year; their prayers are modelled on the old liturgies;
they seek to improve the architecture of their churches, and to promote external reverence in the house of God.

"The formation of the "Scottish Church Society" has, however, revealed the fact that a number of the most faithful and laborious ministers of the church, men who do not play with mere ritual, are deeply apprehensive of the danger arising from the disintegrating tendencies at work

modern improvements.

There is just sufficient activity in the business part of the town to make it lively and pleasant, but not to disturb the general tranquillity that seems to pervade the town, making it a haven of rest and peace for those accustomed to the high pressure life in big cities.

It was at Nanapanee that the late Sir John A. Macdonald, who for so many years stood at the helm of the Canadian ship of state, began life as a practicing attorney. Shortly before his death he visited Nanapanee, and calling upon his old friend, M. W. Pruyt, they went together to look at the old place where Sir John first had an office and patiently waited his first brief. The portrait of Sir John is the latest that was taken by Mr. Richardson, of Nanapanee, and is considered by Lady, now Baroness, Macdonald as the best that ever taken of her late husband.

A list of the hotels, business houses, the present town council, etc., is also given.

TOWN COUNCIL

COUNCIL CHAMBER
August 7th, '93

Present—Mayor (in the chair), deputy-revee Symington, Couns. Ward, Potter, Daly, McAlister, Warner, Anderson.

A communication was read from the Nanapanee Board of Education, asking for the sum of $2,380 as the town's proportion of the expenses of the Collegiate Institute, and for the sum of $4,740 as the town's share of the expenses for the public schools. Referred to Finance committee to report.

Mr. Symington tendered his resignation as chairman of the streets, and speaking to the resignation he found too much of his time occupied in looking after the various work.

Several councillors spoke as to the resignation, and claimed Mr. Symington had so far been very economical, and that he should keep his place. Communication was ordered filed.

A complaint was made to the council as to the fencing of roads and common property on the hill on the Clarksville road.—Referred to Chief of Police to investigate, and to have the streets opened.

A letter was read from Mrs. Charles Smith asking $5 damages done to garden by cows running at large.—Filed.

Coun. Anderson introduced a by-law to raise the sum of $20,000 for the construction of common sewers in the Town of Nanapanee. Council went into committee of the whole on the by-law, Coun. Anderson in the chair. The by-law recited that the vote of the ratepayers shall be taken at the same time and place as the votes for the municipal council. On motion, committee rose, reported progress, and asked leave to sit again.

Coun. Warner introduced a by-law to appoint a special constable for the Town of Nanapanee. The by-law names P. M. McCabe.—Laid over until next meeting of council.

Coun. Anderson introduced a by-law as to collection of taxes. Council went into committee of the whole. The by-law allows a reduction of one per cent. on all taxes paid on Nov. 1st; taxes paid up to Dec. 31st shall be received at par; after that date penalties or percentages are imposed. On motion, committee rose and reported progress, so that the by-law might be submitted to the town solicitor for inspection.

A discussion took place as to the power of the council to remit school rates to manufacturers or others. On motion the Finance committee were instructed to confer with the town solicitor as to legality of such exemption.

Moved by Symington and Ward that a roadway 40 feet wide be opened up on the east and north sides of the Collegiate Institute, and that the same be planted with shade trees so as in time to form a wind break to the grounds, which now lay exposed to the winds blowing from these directions.

Some funny remarks were made as to this motion, during which the modesty of the school board in asking for appropriations was commended in satirical terms. An amendment to the motion was made, when put to the meeting was lost. The motion was then put and was also lost.

The agreement with the Granolithic Pavement Company was, on motion, read, as a question was raised as to the kerbing to be put on the outside of the walk. The agreement calls for 10 feet of walk and a kerbing of same materials.

On motion the town solicitor and the clerk were instructed to prepare a contract for the walk on the north side of Dundas street on the same terms.

Various accounts were ordered paid, adjourned until the 15th day of August.

wrongly, that as in other countries where the Calvinistic reformation took root, so in Scotland, the time has come when those tendencies to Socialism and eventually to unbelief which seem to lie latent in Calvinism; are about to be developed to an alarming extent, and they see, in the assault upon the established church made by Scottish dissenters in alliance with Roman Catholics and English Non-Conformists not a prelude to a grand reunion of Presbyterians, but the degradation of the national church to the level of its opponents and the removal of every barrier to the tendencies which will cover Scotland with a multitude of warring denominations amidst whose rivalries those great Catholic verities which have ever been dear to the best of the Scottish clergy and people, will lose their hold upon the national conscience.

"To bring then, the Scottish church into line with the Anglican world felt enormously in favor of that reunion of Anglo-Saxon Christendom which would rear up a formidable barrier against Romanism on the one hand, and infidelity on the other, Anglican churches, if these premises be correct, have much need to be concerned in Scottish ecclesiastical matters at this juncture. In the hope that they will see it to be both a duty and advantage to concern themselves in the affairs of a nation which they have hitherto been too apt to class with the moribund and impracticable Puritans of their own country. I venture to address myself to them at this time.

Fifty Years Ago.

The old white church upon the hill
Was shadowy and cool and still;
Solemnly rang the bell and slow,
That Sabbath fifty years ago.

The wind blew gently through the aisle
While bright outdoors the springtime's smile
Fell everywhere that fragrant noon,
When May was fading into June.

Dear wife, 'twas fifty years ago
In that sweet month when violets blow.

In one far corner where the light
Stole softly round in glimpses bright,
There stood a few all carven quaint
And there you sat like some fair saint.

Behind you rose a window tall,
Where virgins, saints, apostles, all
Looked down on you with solemn grace
While glinted sunny, gorgeous grace

Fell from their robes purple and gold,
Crimson and blue, rich tints untold,
And gleamed upon your simple dress,
Lovelier making loveliness.

Through a dusk window where the pines
Stood guard outside in sturdy lines,
A sunbeam crept in here and there
To play with sunbeams in your hair.

Each hymn was like an angels' song,
The sermon seemed not dull nor long,
The text I never heard nor knew,
For I could think of—only you.

Into our hearts love crept, a blessed guest,
Dear wife, what need to rhyme! You know the rest!
My life but dates from fifty years ago
In that sweet month of months when violets blow.

Soldiers of China.

China is the only country in the world where the profession of arms is not honored. The people have a proverb which says: "As one would not employ good iron to make a nail, no one would not use a good man to make a soldier."

Branded as the refuse of society, the warrior class has been condemned by government policy to helpless ignorance. Preserving traditions antedating the invention of firearms, officers of the army need have no education, being merely required to be trained swordsmen, and to swing heavy weights. One of the most important uses to which the soldiers are put is to exterminate grasshoppers. In time of a plague of those insects they march against them under the leadership of their officers, as if proceeding to meet a hostile army in the field.

Each man is armed with a coarse hempen bag attached to a bamboo pole, which is waved back and forth among the swarms until the bag is filled. Then the contents are crushed and the performance is repeated. Regiments of ducks are kept for the same purpose in China, and when grasshoppers have a bad year these birds are not allowed to be killed. The execution they do is said to be astounding. The farmers receive four cents a pound for dead grasshoppers, or for their eggs, which they dig out of the ground.

An Artist's Lament.

A well-known artist has come out strongly against starch, which he calls one of the curses of the nineteenth century. Says he: "Not only does it make our clothes unpleasant to wear, but it makes them hideous to look at." Pointing to a charming piece of statuary, he continued: "Now, look at the beauty and simple dignity of that toga and contrast it with the dress of a modern man. That was then soft and yielding; the modern shirt, collar, cuffs, hats, shoes, corsets, even the women's gowns, are hard and unbending. The effect of antique dress was grace; the effect of our dress is that of stiffness and discomfort. It is more than an effect—it is a fact. Nobody could be easy and look thoroughly well in our clothes. We want to organize a reform movement against starch."
